Summer Course "Revolution and Democracy: Perspectives on the "Arab Spring"

In July, NVIC is organizing a summer course on the 'Arab Spring' and its results, in cooperation with the Free University of Amsterdam and the University of Groningen. This summer school will be held from July 21st until August 1st and will address questions such as: What were the main causes of the Arab Spring uprisings? And how should we understand the demands of the various groups involved? What is the relation between Islam and democracy within the regional context? What are the ideological differences underlying the tensions between Islamist and secularist political forces? Read more>>

MA Program Arabic and Islamic Studies

In the Fall, the Institute organizes for the fourth time an MA semester for students of Arabic and Islamic Studies of the Dutch and Flemish universities. Read more>>

NVICinema June

In the month of June we will end the Huna Hulanda cultural events with the Dutch film Rabat (2011). We had a whole month of Dutch short films (introduced and discussed by Egyptian filmmaker Hala Galal) and a mixed program with a historical film (Character), a typical Dutch comedy (Emma Blank) and a film reflecting on contemporary young and urban Holland (Rabat). The last film before the summer will be the new documentary In Search of 'Oil and Sand' (Philippe Dib, Wael Omar 2012). See you again in September! Read more>>

Exhibition John O'Carroll

The exhibition of paintings from the Dakhlah Oasis by John O'Carroll can still be visited until 16th of June during the following hours: Sunday through Thursday from 9am to 3pm. Read more>>
