Dates and details TAFL course June

The date and details about the new edition of the Teaching Arabic as a Foreign Language course are now online. The course will take place in the first week of June (1-9 June). Have a look at the programme on our website. To apply, send an email to info@nvic.leidenuniv.nl.

Films and Lectures

After the successful theme of 'language and books' from last month, we now move on with a new topic. The coming months the topic will be 'The Other'. We selected some interesting movies and lectures and are looking forward to see you all at our events. More information and updates on our Facebook page and our website.

Students journal Egyptology

The new group of Egyptology students has a full schedule with visiting museums, tombs and trips to various places in Egypt. Every week one of the students writes a journal about their activities. Keep track of their adventures on our website.

New group of Bachelor students Arabic

NVIC welcomes a new group of Bachelor students for the Arabic programme. We hope they have a pleasant stay in Cairo. Read one of their stories here.

Two new guest researchers at NVIC

NVIC has the pleasure to welcome Pavlos Kavouras from the University of Athens. He is a professor of cultural anthropology and ethnomusicology, his research focuses on music and religion with a special emphasis on Sufism. At the moment he is preparing a winter school that will engage academics, artists and advanced students from Egypt, Greece, Belgium and The Netherlands. The main focus of this winter school will be on the relationship between religion and politics in the perspective of art (music, multimedia) and anthropology.

NVIC also welcomes the new PhD guest researcher Ilyas Saliba. Ilyas Saliba is a PhD candidate at the Berlin Graduate School for Social Sciences (BGSS) at Humboldt University Berlin. Ilyas' research lies at the intersection of international relations and Middle Eastern studies. His research has taken him to Tunisia, Morocco and Egypt. He is interested in the impact of inclusionary and exclusionary approaches in transitions and the diffusion of government practices across borders.
